PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE:

As stated in the last newsletter, I was trying to find alternative feed sources for our sheep, due to the drought...with all the health issues in our immediate family, not counting 4 family members passing away since July 17th (one died this past week), I just bit the bullet and we have been feeding our very limited supply of hay. (We do have some hay that could be cut now...but we will probably have to have it cut and baled by someone else...an expense we certainly do not need.) I would like to have anyone that has dealt with locating alternative feedstuffs to send that information to Louise to be used in supplying information to all of our group via the web site and/or newsletter

We have a General Membership meeting scheduled during NAILE. There is an announcement in this newsletter about date, time and place. There is also a BOD meeting scheduled for Thursday morning after the Tunis show. Again, check out the Newsletter for exact information.

I am asking each committee chair(s) to have written reports available for distribution to the Board at that time. I also asked, during the committee selection time, for each committee to work on establishing some guidelines for that committee. I am looking forward to seeing those, as I have felt that a lacking asset. I have also suggested that committees look at, and possibly suggest, term limits and order of succession. We truly need to involve newer members and more members, so that each person feels more ownership. We must be open to all persons, not one segment or another. We all need not to hold grudges...as I have learned some have. Since I was not on the Board several years ago when issues arose with one committee or another, I simply nominated persons that I felt would make good contributing committee members. This has not set well with some members.

This time has certainly been a learning experience for me. I have been criticized for not being more "hands on", but that is what committees are for, what delegation of duties is for; as well. I do have responsibilities other than NTSRI. The first being my family, then my own personal health, and my flock. I stated this to the BOD and I have not wavered from that.

I would like to mention a topic that will be discussed (and possibly voted on during the membership meeting)....Re-organization of Districts. I was on the Board when the subject of EXPANDING districts was discussed. There were 7 districts then. Having served as Secretary for several years, I was well aware of the problems of getting the membership to vote on issues via mailed ballots. As having also served as Elections Officer, I also knew that VERY FEW nominated anyone, but even after nominations were made and ballots mailed....You might get 3 ballots returned when there were 15 or more members eligible to vote. Having said all that, I am extremely EXCITED to see that the committee is looking at REDUCING the number of districts, possibly back down to 7, even though it could eliminate/combine my district with another. What I have heard from the Re-Districting Committee really makes me proud that this group has taken a very serious topic and TRULY appears to be working for the betterment of the NTSRI Family. Many Thanks to that Committee!!!

Hope to see you in Louisville.....AnnaRae Hodgin

Please keep Richard Feasley, Jr. Region 4 Director, in your prayers....

As his father, Richard E. Feasley, Sr of Holland, NY entered into rest, August 24, 2008. Beloved husband of Linda M. Feasley; Devoted father of Carmen, Kelly (Gary Exley) and Richard E. Feasley, Jr.; loving son of the late Emmett and Dorothy (nee Kolby) Feasley; and survived by many relatives and friends. We are thinking of you, Richard.

Let's Meet.....REGION 4'S ALTERNATE....Laura Driesel

Driesel Tunis/Rocky Haven Farm is located in Lyndonville, NY. The family consists of Dad - Gerard, a carpenter; Mom - Laura who runs Aunt LuLu's Embroidery; Daughter - Sally, who owns the sheep and Son - Chris, who owns the cows. Sally is a NYS Sign Language Interpreter. In order for Sally to accomplish this, she leaves her sheep in the care of the family. Chris is a certified welder and works as a roofer. Gerard and I will celebrate our 25th wedding anniversary in March of 2009.

Laura writes..."We operate an intensive rotational grazing pasture for the cows (Black Angus) and sheep (Tunis). There are 15 paddocks that the livestock go through during grazing months. We put up about 900 bales of hay and have a temporary silo made out of pallets each year for winter feed. The pallets are stacked 2 high with enhancements on top, a roundish enclosure that is lined with plastic. It is NEVER the prettiest thing you ever saw. We only feed grain to the sheep when they are nursing their lambs. There are 2 breeding cows and we raise 2-3 beef yearlings a year. Sheep vary in numbers from 8-14 and 1 ram. We keep a small flock of chickens and have experimented with turkeys."

When asked about the people who have been the most helpful, Laura writes, "There is not really one direct person. When Sally was showing her sheep in 4-H fairs, everybody we came across was very helpful. It did not matter what breed of sheep you showed. If you had a question, there were many people ready and willing to answer it."

Goals? "To be able to change our lambing cycle to lamb May-June. This will avoid the expensive grain." Things that you would have done differently? "I think I should do more with the wool the sheep produce. At present, I give it to a spinner's guild. I just don't need any more hobbies!" Advice for beginners? "Don't be afraid to ask questions!!! If you don't understand the Judge's comment - ASK! If you can't find the judge after the show or have a question(s) later, ask another sheep producer." Final comments? "As sheep/lamb producers we need to encourage the consumer to buy AMERICAN LAMB--preferably TUNIS LAMB!"

Thanks, Laura....we're glad to have you on the board!

Walter Clark, Region 5 Director writes....

Well, it has been a busy summer and early fall. Our show season is nearly over. The hay is finally put up after an unusually wet summer. We didn't finish the first crop cutting 'till nearly August. Needless to say, everything is running WAY BEHIND. KILE will be history by the time you read this letter and the results will be on the web. We all need to give Debbi a big "Thank You" for the terrific job she is doing with the website. We are certainly blessed to have her working so diligently for us.

On a personal note, we just had our first grandchild on August 24th, Megan Elizabeth Yurisic. I told my wife, Denise, that she was getting old, and....I got the look!!! Sarah has already her dressed with her little sheep shirt and overalls. Life is short and we need to cherish the moments we have with family and friends. Remember show wins and losses are temporary, but loving relationships last forever.

Enough philosophizing, many are already gearing up for NAILE and we hope to see many there. We will only be there for the directors meeting and then rushing back for work, Thanksgiving, deer hunting and Christmas. January brings the Pennsylvania Farm Show. Tunis breeders in PA can enter their Tunis in the All Other Breeds meat class. We look forward to seeing some at this state show. January is often an unpredictable weather time in Harrisburg, but what better to do in January and the snow?

Don't forget.....Tunis are Tops!

Walter Clark

YOUTH LEAD THE WAY....

Jozi Best

Half of the 14 exhibitors at the 2008 Northeast Regional Tunis show at the Big E in Springfield, Mass. in mid September were NTSRI juniors. Three of them won 6 of the blue ribbons in the 11 classes they entered plus Champion and Reserve rosettes. The seven youngsters showed 22 of the 65 sheep in this prestigious open show.

Brianna Taylor started the youth achievements as she brought a Bruns bred junior ram lamb up into 1st place, then showed him into the Jr Champion ram and finished up with the Reserve Grand Champion Ram trophy.

Jeremy Jochums-Chickering one-twoed the early yearling ewe class, topped the Pairs of Yearling Ewes, then learned the lavender Reserve Senior Champion Ewe rosette.

Anna Charest dominated the younger female category by winning with both her Intermediate and her Junior ewe lamb followed by the Pair class. She naturally moved up to the purple Junior Champion Ewe rosette and finally bested Jeremy's Reserve Sr. Champion to garner the Reserve Grand Champion Ewe award. Anna also showed 2nd place Get of Sire out of 6 entries.

Sean Harper had a 2nd with his Intermediate ram lamb and Devan Newton showed a 3rd place late Yearling Ewe. Mandy and Justine Swartz also had ewe lambs in the lineups.

All 7 were recognized at the end of the show and Jozi Best each with a colorful promotion poster created from the inside back cover layout in the 2007 TUNIS SPIRIT. Additional posters were provided for Anna to give to every junior Tunis exhibitor participating in the 4-H sheep competition the following weekend to which all New England states send qualified 12 to 18 years olds.

LET'S TALK ABOUT .....DECISION MAKING IN DIFFICULT TIMES!

At a recent Ohio Sheep Improvement Field Day, Daryl Clark led a discussion about "Putting It All Together - Making Management Decisions" and it all revolved around staying profitable with your sheep. He said several times that there are some things we can't control and there are some that we can...and we need to make economic decisions based on those things that we can control like....

Shelly Strain of Misfit Acres in Greenwood, DE writes...."Raising any animal, for pleasure or profit, has become increasingly difficult and expensive as prices of grain and hay have stored. With over 30 Tunis sheep, 11 horses, 4 goats, 2 alpacas, geese, ducks, cats and dogs our feed bills did almost seem to reach a level that would be unaffordable. The sheep are bred primarily for the kids to show, and since mom, who does the majority of the feeding and caring for the sheep, doesn't want any of them to go for meat (she's a vegetarian and loves all her sheep) many are kept just because so they don't become someone's dinner. (That said, my husband and I actually had to go purchase Tunis lambs for our freezer since we wanted to know just how delicious the Tunis we raise are!)

To reduce our feed and hay bill, we have taken several steps. We have pre purchased (at the summer rates) as much hay as possible. We feed large, round bales where possible, which, at least for us, is more economical. Since we don't have much pasture available, hay can be our largest expenditure. We have switched feeds to a locally milled feed that not only costs less, but also seems to do a better job of putting weight on our lambs and keeping the pregnant ewes at a comfortable weight, so we are able to feed less.

Since we don't sell lambs for meat, only show quality sheep are sold. Therefore, we are breeding fewer ewes and being very selective in which ewes are bred. Hopefully, this will increase the percentage we are able to sell as breeding sheep, or we choose to keep and breed ourselves. Specifically we look at temperament, conformation and color. Temperament is very important to us since we often have young children (as young as 5) showing and they need a sheep that will not pull them around the ring.

Since our flock is small and we don't show outside of Delaware we don't sell too many sheep. Occasionally, we are able to sell a few of the ewes that aren't breeding quality as pets through a local sales paper. Our breeding sheep have sold from our web page and our Tunis Spirit ad. While we don't market our sheep fertilizer, I save money by using it on my gardens instead of buying fertilizers. My flowers love it."

Lisa Twomey of LaFarge, WI writes...."To help manage our feed expenses over the long term, we are working to improve our pasture by seeding with rye and timothy grasses and clovers. When we first started raising our Tunis, we fed them bales of hay throughout the summer---that has long since stopped! lol (40 lb bales went from $2 to $4 each.) We have looked at alternative feeds like soy hulls and dried distillers grain solubles, but the price in our area is actually higher than that for corn (not by much, but still), so we haven't made that change.

We aren't trying to reduce the number of animals we have except through sales of lamb. We are fortunate to be able to sell pretty much all the lamb we can produce. We keep our oldest, non-producing ewes through a possibly misguided sense of loyalty.

We are not yet doing rotational grazing. The sheep travel around the three main pastures daily, although we do have a couple of areas that we fence off to grow new grass and clover. We have purchased an additional 6 acres that we are working to reclaim and see, and we hope by next year to be able to do a true rotation. We don't have the maximum number of animals our land will support, but we have as many as we can handle right now!

Our most successful marketing has been through our website, supported by google. We have gotten nearly all of our lamb customers through the site. We also have ads in SHEEP! magazine, the ALBC newsletter, and we have a listing on LocalHarvest.com. We sold 2 ewes through the SHEEP! ad, but to the best of my knowledge have not sold anything through the others. The downside with google is the cost per "hit" on the site versus our ability to close sales calls; well, MY ability to close sales--James is very good at it. We hope to gain a reliable customer base so that we can eventually cut down on the google expense.

We do not any local advertising other than having a sign at the end of the driveway. Although we live in Organic Valley's hometown, they aren't a market because they don't sell lamb (not enough interest), and everyone out here who wants it seems to raise their own. It's strange but true that we have had better success selling our lamb in New York City than in the State of Wisconsin. The lamb we sell is between 5 and 11 months old, depending upon how fast they reach 100 pounds. Customers say it is the best lamb they've ever had. Tunis tastes great!

We have not yet produced any marketable wool, but that is our next goal. We will be eager to see what creative sheep products other producers suggest; the only thing I have is a lot of lamb tails that I can't figure out what to do with!"
